In January 2021, Hawai‘i People’s Fund is embarking on a huaka‘i with a purpose to radically transform the way we move money to movements for real change from the roots up!

Giving Projects are innovative, inclusive, intentional vessels providing safe and brave spaces for collaborations between diverse groups of people, bringing together shared values, passions, and abilities that center around intergenerational progress and socio-cultural wellbeing. Giving Projects are created for individuals and families that want to strengthen their relationships, skills, understanding, leadership, and purpose to support more meaningful community resourcing and community building that is genuinely in service to our stories, places, and people.

The Giving Project will interweave a cross-class, cross-race, gender-diverse, intergenerational collective that shares a vision for a just and equitable Hawai‘i to apply their time, talent, and resources to supporting movements for social change.

It is truly a collaborative process, and provides an opportunity for your mana to be cultivated over a period of six months. The hui will work together virtually and in-person, to deepen their understanding of Hawaii’s unique history, contemporary social justice principles, and engage in collective giving to amplify and illuminate positive impacts throughout our pae ‘āina.

Our inaugural Giving Project journey promises to take our collective efforts to the next level!!
